BUSINESSMEN PARTICIPATE . . .
Torrance Councilman, Area Chairman,
Officially Opens '61 Heart Fund Drive

Councilman J. A. Beasley, recently named chairman of the area's Heart Fund Drive, yesterday officially opened the annual campaign in Torrance.

Beasley, who recently underwent treatment for a heart disorder, was so impressed by the activities of the Heart Fund organization, that he sought out and volunteered his services in this year's drive.

The councilman yesterday led 5 Torrance businessmen and women in visiting the community's business offices, stores and professional buildings, as well as shopping centers.

BUSINESS DRIVE
The business drive the first ten days of February, is a high point in the month-long 1961 Heart

Fund campaign in Torrance.

"Besides causing untold human suffering, heart disease seriously affects our community's welfare" stated Beasley. "It is a threat to the well-being of business and industry and to the security of the family. On the nation's economic balance sheet, heart and blood vessel diseases are responsible for the loss of more than the million work-days of production each year in Los Angeles—an amount estimated to cost in excess of hundred million dollars."

One fourth of these losses involve men and women in the 45 to 65 year age brackets who have reached the peaks of their skills and are occupying key positions in the nation's businesses.

VITAL STAKE
"In the face of these facts," he continued, "every businessman has a vital stake in the fight against the heart and blood vessel diseases. I sincerely hope that the business leaders in our community will give generously to 'Business Invests In Heart Days' campaign."

"Their Heart Fund contributions will speed the fight against our country's Number One health enemy,"
